

Ilya Kokorin

Dr. Ilya Kokorin is a Supervision officer at the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets and a Research fellow at the Amsterdam Center for Law & Economics, University of Amsterdam. In 2023, Dr Kokorin defended his PhD at Leiden University, where he also worked as Assistant Professor in Financial Law. His PhD dissertation focused on the insolvency of multinational enterprise groups, including banking groups, and the role of intra-group financial arrangements (e.g. intra-group loans, intercompany guarantees) in restructuring and insolvency. Dr Kokorin is an active participant in the Digital Assets Project at the University of Oxford. He is also a member of several leading institutions in the field of insolvency and restructuring law, including the International Insolvency Institute (III - NextGen), INSOL International and INSOL Europe. He has a broad interest in insolvency and restructuring law, financial regulation and digital technologies.

Dr Kokorin has recently published the book Intra-Group Financing and Enterprise Group Insolvency: Law and Practice (Edward Elgar Publishing 2025) and co-edited the book Markets in Crypto-Assets Regulation: Law and Technology (Hart Publishing 2025). He also co-authored the books (with Prof. Bob Wessels) Cross-Border Protocols in Insolvencies of Multinational Enterprise Groups (Edward Elgar Publishing 2021) and European Union Regulation on Insolvency Proceedings: An Introductory Analysis (ABI Publishing, 4th edn, 2018). Dr Kokorin is currently working on commentaries to the EU Preventive Restructuring Directive and EU Directive harmonising certain aspects of insolvency law (to be published in 2027).
